ORANGE COUNTY 2017 NO NAME-CALLING WEEK ANNOUNCED

MIDDLETOWN, NY – Schools and youth-services organizations throughout Orange County have declared January 16-20, 2017, as Orange County No Name-Calling Week. The prevalence and severity of bullying and harassment among youth has gained national attention in recent years. Educators, parents, mentors and service providers will conduct activities aimed at stemming the tide of name calling and promoting respect for all.

Orange County No Name-Calling Week is being sponsored by the Cultural Equity Taskforce (CET) in Orange County in partnership with the Orange County Executive's Office, Orange-Ulster BOCES, Orange County Youth Bureau, Orange County Department of Mental Health, Orange County Department of Social Services, Orange County Probation Department, Orange County System of Care, and Joint Membership of Health and Community Agencies (JMHCA).

The CET is a group of human service providers and community members committed to promoting the fair, just, and equitable delivery of publicly funded services to the people of Orange County. The group operates on the fundamental principle that it is the right of every culture to express itself and develop in an environment free from oppression.

“Ownership of issues around youth safety must come from the community at large,” said Nadia Allen, Executive Director, Mental Health Association in Orange County and Vice-Chair, Cultural Equity Taskforce in Orange County.

No Name-Calling Week provides an opportunity to promote respect, build self-control, confidence and resilience to bullying, both in and out of school settings. We are pleased to announce that Orange County Executive Steve Neuhaus will recognize and proclaim January 16-20, 2017, as Orange County No Name-Calling Week.

The seventh of its kind in Orange County, this countywide effort to address bullying and harassment began from a “Safe Schools Roundtable” convened by GLSEN Hudson Valley and the Hudson Valley LGBTQ Community Center in Kingston. For over 7 years, community and school district leaders have come together to develop projects that address the issues of bullying and safety in our communities.

We believe that a little more kindness can go a long way toward fundamentally changing the name-calling and bullying cultures in our schools, especially when a foundation of respect is taught in elementary school. That's why GLSEN is promoting the theme for No Name-Calling Week: Celebrate Kindness.

For the past seven years, we have encouraged schools, youth programs, faith communities, service organizations and the entire community to participate in No Name-Calling Week. Only by teaching respect and encouraging kindness throughout our communities can we eradicate bullying and harassment in our schools.

The County Executives of Orange, Dutchess, and Ulster have lent support to a Hudson Valley-wide “No Name-Calling Week” through proclamations and press conferences.

This year, the popular Student Creative Expression Exhibit will take place at the end of March allowing for more time for students to create! We encourage you to make creative expression projects part of your week-long No Name-Calling Week activities.

We are very excited to announce that this year's Student Creative Expression Exhibit will return to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum from March 20-24, 2017. We hope you will join us for an opening reception on Monday, March 20th from 6:30pm-8:00pm at the Henry A. Wallace Center at the historic site in Hyde Park, NY.
